Juliette Gordon Low Corner

The first school that Juliette attended was in Mlle. Lucille Blois's home, a short walk from her home. There she learned manners, French, geography, history, spelling, and arithmetic. She was a good student however she was a terrible speller and it is noted that she was an awful speller in both English and French. She later attended Stuart Hall, a boarding school in Virginia.

Her mother was direct and commented on her bad spelling. She once wrote to her. "I send a list of your words spelt wrong and the right way to spell them. Please study them hard, as you frequently, in fact always, spell them wrongly."

Juliette Happenings

Reata has found a love for travel through Destinations. This last summer, she travelled to Oahu, Hawaii to Camp Paumalu, a STEM Center for Excellence. During her Destination she learned about the Hawaiian people and culture at the Polynesian Cultural Center, she made lei's and attended a luau. They did two service projects, one pulling weeds in the taro pits full of mud and the other at Hamauma Bay Nature Preserve picking up micro plastics from the beach where she also went snorkeling. Reata is looking forward to her next Destination in the British Isles!

Rachel spent time this summer edging headstones at the Mountain View Cemetery. To start this project Rachel had to meet with the cemetery Saxon as well as the Parks and Rec Volunteer Committee to discuss her project. After receiving permission for her project she then went through training with cemetery workers so she could be shown the proper way to edge headstones. Rachel is edging headstones in the infant and children's section.
